BACHELOR OF COMMERCE IN SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT	7	122089	360

DESCRIPTION

The most prominent supply chain occupations that where in high demand in South Africa were logistics manager and demand planners which are both positions that are available to students after the completion of Berea College of Technology's Bachelor of Commerce in Supply Chain Management. BCT's BCom (Supply Chain Management) programme aims to resolve the highlighted scarce skills in Supply Chain Management within the country. Students that have a passion for managing crucial business processes such as transportation, operations, procurement, and warehousing will be equipped with the necessary skills required to fulfil occupations within the aforementioned fields after the completion of this degree. Supply chain management-related positions are the most related occupations to this degree but also develop the necessary skills to understand business processes and soft skills such as analytical thinking, time management and problem-solving. This opens graduates to explore a number of occupations beyond the discipline of supply chain management. The degree is also structured to develop students into business professionals that understand organisational structures and mechanisms and equip them with the necessary leadership skills to prepare them for a variety of occupations, from general management to business analysis positions.
